

the little district, Mr. (cousin of Whitley Wood) Smith, of the same name, for the purpose of his district. It is to be expected that the result will be in favor of the latter, as in some of the townships he rendered it necessary to limit the quantity for each to two or three acres, each at the most, but even that small quantity is proving an exceedingly welcome boon in his district.

The little double track arrangement by which the line has been a general introduction of pulpit seats has been a great success. Nonconforming ministers appear to have assumed the same position as in the assembly. How the congregations will like it remains to be seen.

at BEELEY.—A fire took place on morning at a house belonging to Mr. Grafton, of Beoley. The place was nearly open, and a quantity of straw and oats was in the place. As the fire occurred at both ends of the house, it is believed to have work of an incendiary.

tion, in a college or madhouse. It is said that Anne Comper, of Ketchikan, died from which with which she had been supplied by the man whose real name is George Jones. Her manslaughter has been returned by the grand jury. The coroner has not yet investigated the circumstances of her death. The prisoner had taken up his abode in Newbury during the past fortnight, and market days had occupied a stall in the public place, and addressed crowds of country folk on the valuable properties of his medicines. He was preparing for a sale in the market: when the police apprehended him, and he is now detained in the Newbury borough gaol.

work at the marriage. The effect of colour by the juxtaposition of such a vast quantity of rare materials and fabrics was that most striking to a masculine eye. The silks and velvets were on a vast and wondrous scale, and wandered through the Palace in this right Imperial wardrobe once realised the splendour and magnificence of the trousseau. The trousseau was mostly the production of St. Petersburg.

NEWS AND THE ROYAL MARRIAGE.
The millions of men who enjoy peace, prosperity, and freedom under the benediction of the constitutional sceptre of Britain, the celebration of the Royal marriage, the Caledonia guardship fired a Royal salute, but business went on as usual. No preparations for illuminations could be seen, though they were talked about, and there was a general talk that "somebody ought to have done something to show that Liverpool is worthy of its name as one of the most loyal towns in the Kingdom." The Corporation agreed to a formal illumination on such occasions, and the Mayor of the behest path, by giving two grand dinners in St. George's Hall, on Thursday night of last evening, to upwards of 3000 poor and women. On Thursday evening, the

[illegible]

that the three undenominational and the two Wesleyan candidates would be "in," but considerable difficulty was experienced in "placing" the other two. Sadler, who was returned by the undenominational party three years ago, and who has proved most useful member, owes his low position on the poll to uniting himself with the two Church candidates.

MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—"We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at the works in the Euston road, London."—See article in Cassell's Household Guide.—Adv.

Thomas Graham, provision dealer, Corby street for a 1oz. weight one drachm light. Geo. Allen provision dealer, Corby street; for a 1lb. weight near 1oz. light and unstamped. Henry Tasker grocer, Petre street; for flour scales 11ozs. against the buyer.

FIKE AT BEBLEY.—A fire took place on Saturday morning at a house belonging to Mr Samuel Grafton, of Bebley. The place was nearly burned down, and a quantity of straw and oats were destroyed. As the fire occurred at both ends of the barn simultaneously, it is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

for moribund, not a charge of manslaughter. It was alleged that Arthur Comper, of Uckin, died from poison, with which he had been supplied by the prisoner, whose real name is George Bond. A verdict of manslaughter has been returned by the jury who had investigated the circumstances of Comper's death. The prisoner had taken up quarters in Newbury during the past fortnight, and on market days had occupied a stall in the market place, and addressed crowds of country folk on the valuable properties of his medicines. He was making preparations for a sale in the market place when the police apprehended him, and he was now detained in the Newbury borough gaol.

silver, worn at the marriage. The effect of color caused by the juxtaposition of such a vast quantity of rich and rare materials and fabrics was the which most struck a masculine eye. The silks and embroideries were in a vast and gorgeous array, and as one wandered through the Palace and the house of this right Imperial wardrobe one realized the material splendour and magnificence of the marriage. The trousseau was mostly the production of St. Petersburg.

THE JEWS AND THE ROYAL MARRIAGE

Among the millions of men who enjoy pageantry, prosperity, and freedom under the beneficent sway of the constitutional sceptre of Britain to denote the celebration of the Royal Marriage. At noon, the Caledonia guardship fired a Royal salute, but business went on as usual. No preparations for illuminations could be seen, though there had been talked about, and there was a general feeling that "somebody ought to have done something" to show that Liverpool is worthy of its reputation as one of the most loyal towns in the Kingdom. The Corporation agreed to a formal address, usual on such occasions, and the Mayor went out of the beaten path, by giving two grand banquets in St. George's Hall, on Wednesday night and last evening, to upwards of 3,000 persons, aged men and women. On Thursday evening, the and wine banquet was held in the To Hall, at which the health and happiness of the Duke and Grand Duchess Maria were proposed, and enthusiastically received. Other towns in Finbher are commemorating the occasion. At Astruthier, Copar, and Dunfermline there were cake and wine banquets. At Colindale the Volunteers sang a jeu de joie. The inhabitants of Leaside dined together in the To Hall. Burntisland regaled the deserving poor with a substantial repast, and the Provost treated the Council and other friends to cake and wine. The evening the Freemasons had a torchlight procession.